Mike is driven by challenges and leverages his expertise in technology strategy and operations, project management and security to create scalable platforms for businesses.

During his career, Mike has worked with more than 60 businesses, ranging from startups to multi-billion dollar financial services companies. His broad experience, combined with the ability to simplify complex concepts and communicate them to anyone has led to him being a strategic advisor for CEOs and other executives.

Mike is the founder of the Vancouver Technology Leaders, a group dedicated to developing the next generation of technology leaders; a speaker on technology and cyber-security; and a meditation instructor.
